

PERINATAL INFANT PSYCHIATRY CONFERENCE
Saturday, May 18, 2024
Weill Cornell Medical College
Virtual via Zoom
Soudabeh Givrad, M.D., Course Director

IDENTIFIED PRACTICE GAPS/EDUCATIONAL NEEDS

There is a knowledge gap for clinicians and trainees in the fields of perinatal and infant psychiatry, as perinatal expertise is usually found in adult and women's health modalities, whereas infant knowledge is based in pediatrics. This separation has become an obstacle in fullspectrum treatment, especially as we have continued to learn about the profound reciprocal connection between parent and child beyond mere biology.

TARGETED AUDIENCE

This course is designed for healthcare providers, trainees, and researchers in psychiatry, psychology, obstetrics, pediatrics, primary care, and ancillary fields, who engage with mothers and their babies.

OBJECTIVES/DESIRED OUTCOMES

It is intended that this Weill Cornell CME activity will lead to improved patient care, including improvements in knowledge, competence, or performance. At the conclusion of this activity, participants should be able to:

- a. Gain more awareness and competence in understanding the mother-baby (parent-infant's) health as a unit
- b. Increase the clinician's understanding of the experiences of parents and babies in acute perinatal care setting
- c. Increase the clinician's understanding the experiences of parents in the context of perinatal loss
- d. Increase the clinician's understanding of the need for multidisciplinary care to provide a comprehensive and wholesome care for parents and babies in these settings.
- e. Increase the clinician's ability to assess, formulate, and come up with treatment plans with a dyadic lens and understanding for high risk perinatal situations.
