

Weill Cornell Medicine

Weill Cornell Medicine's Department of Psychiatry is seeking to recruit a full time licensed clinical Psychologist with a specialization and expertise in working with medically ill patients, both individually and in models of integrated care. In particular, the ideal candidate would have advanced knowledge and training in individual and group cognitive behavior therapy, as well as expertise in developing systems of care that integrate mental health in medical practices. This practitioner will function as part of an interdisciplinary team to advance the psychological support and health of individuals treated in the Weill Cornell Collaborative Care Center -- a multidisciplinary clinic that cares for patients seen by Weill Cornell Primary Care Medicine. The position would include opportunities to participate in the design and implementation of integrated models of care, as well as opportunities for clinical supervision of other therapists and trainees. This is a great opportunity for a motivated, industrious clinician interested in being part of a world-class team.

Minimum Requirements: Applicants must have a doctoral degree in Clinical Psychology from an APA-accredited program and possess or be eligible for NY state licensure. Experience with CBT and integrated models of care delivery are required. Academic rank will be commensurate with experience.

Founded in 1898, and affiliated with what is now New York-Presbyterian Hospital (NYPH) since 1927, Weill Cornell Medical College (WCMC) is among the top-ranked clinical and medical research centers in the country. Weill Cornell Psychiatry is one of the largest, most prestigious departments in the country, with a long, distinguished history of providing outstanding leadership in clinical care, training, and research in all areas of psychiatric disorders. Our programs at NewYork-Presbyterian/Weill Cornell Medical Center in Manhattan and New York-Presbyterian Westchester Behavioral Health Center in White Plains, New York, are renowned for the range and quality of our inpatient and outpatient specialty programs and general psychiatric services.

Diversity is one of Weill Cornell Medicine's core values and is essential to achieving excellence in patient care, research, and education. We welcome applications from candidates who share our commitment to fostering a culture of fairness, equity, and belonging. Weill Cornell Medicine is an Equal Employment Opportunity Employer, providing equal employment opportunities to all qualified applicants without regard to race, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, color, age, religion, protected veteran or disability status, or genetic information.

Qualified candidates are invited to send a CV and letter of interest to:
